

“Those who make peaceful revolution impossible will make violent revolution inevitable.”

- John F. Kennedy

This quote means that if peace can be maintained in a revolution, violence can also be the other way for revolution. In a way, it means that if there is no peace, violence is the only other option for a revolution since it is unavoidable.

I agree with this quote because I believe that peace is something that is good during a revolution. However, I also believe that if the way of a peaceful revolution does not work, then a violent one can be necessary. If peace is possible, violence is possible, therefore both can be chosen, depending on the situation and people.
